This new 100% money back promo by the company is coming on the heels of the recent announcement that any subscriber who purchases the ZTE X175 and Haier D920 can enjoy on-net bonus airtime covering the value of the purchased phone within 30 days of their activation. The ZTE X175 phone is priced at N1,999 and upon minimum first time recharge of at least N100 (one hundred naira), the purchaser will get automatic bonus FREE airtime and the Starcomms customer would be able to make free on-net calls to the tune of N1,999 within the first month from activation. This promotion is coming at a time when the purchasing power of many is generally dwindling and subscribers are keen to get adequate value for their money.

Speaking on the offer, the Chief Executive Officer of Starcomms Plc. Maher Qubain said: "Starcomms acknowledges the adjustments people have had to make in the last few months of challenging economic situation. It is therefore apt for us to respond positively, as we always do, to the yearnings of our subscriber, especially students and other people in the lower segment of the economy. We have therefore made it easy for people to join the Starcomms network without having to overstretch themselves financially. This is part of our strong resolve to always bring the best offer to the reach of our teeming subscriber."

The use of this bonus FREE airtime can be enjoyed by Starcomms subscriber within only one month starting from the moment of first activation. The new subscribers will enjoy this offer alongside the value-added services like the missed call notification and the call waiting options.

With the Missed Call Notification service by Starcomms, each missed call will be brought to the attention of subscribers as an SMS to their mobile phone when the phone is later switched on or is back within the network range.

With the call waiting service, a subscriber is notified that a new call is coming during a separate active call and it also allows for the customer to switch between one call and the other.

When a Starcomms customer is having a conversation on their Starcomms phone and someone else calls, this customer will hear the call waiting tone (a beep) and the number flashing. All they need to do is press end to end the current call and pick the second call. But in a case where the subscriber wishes to swing between calls, they can ask the current caller to hold and press accept to take the in-coming call end it and then press accept to return to his conversation with the first caller.
